Introduction

The hazards from fire present a significant risk to the safety of people and property. This workshop will provide those responsible for the day-to-day management of fire safety for hotels with the underpinning knowledge and practical skills required to manage the risk effectively, and ensure that employees are properly trained.

Delivery and content

The workshop will be delivered in-person by a competent and experienced tutor over 1 day.

The content will cover:

- + Basic design principles for escape in the event of fire
- + Compartmentation & fire barriers, including fire doors
- + Fire alarm and evacuation planning
- + Evacuation of disabled persons
- + Developing an evacuation plan
- + Hotel fire hazards and their management
- + Use of fire extinguishers
- + Testing and maintenance of fire protection systems
- + Employee training (includes slides and supporting resources for delivering employee training)
- + Preparing for fire authority inspections
- + Life safety system failure planning

The workshop style will encourage maximum delegate participation through groupwork, discussion and other interactive resources.

Who should attend?

The workshop has been designed for hotel managers and chief engineers / maintenance managers who have responsibilities for property maintenance and providing fire training to employees. Hotel owners and directors will also benefit from an awareness of the standards that should be in place to protect people and the value of their assets.

Assessment

At the end of the workshop each delegate will receive a link by email to an online assessment comprising 20 questions. This will take approximately 30 minutes to complete and the pass mark is 75% (15 correct answers). The cost of the workshop includes two attempts at the assessment.

Cost

The cost of an inter company workshop for up to 12 delegates is £1,225.00 (excluding VAT). This includes all materials, assessment and certification.

Open workshops are held on a regular basis. Please contact us for further details.
